

Season 2: Episode 13 - Dave

Not too much this week, but enjoy:

1. Henry has confirmed the belief that 'Zeke' is not the head honcho of the Others. (Actually, according to Henry, he's 'nobody'.)
2. None of the people in the Asylum passed Dave the basketball in the basketball game, because he wasn't really there.
3. The real Henry Gale's note was written on a newer $20 bill. So the crash had to be fairly recent. According to a quick google search, the colorful $20's came out in 2003.

4. We all saw it, but still.... Libby was in the asylum with Hurley !!! (no wonder he recognized her from somewhere. does she recognize him ?)

If you were REALLY good, you saw libby in this scene first...

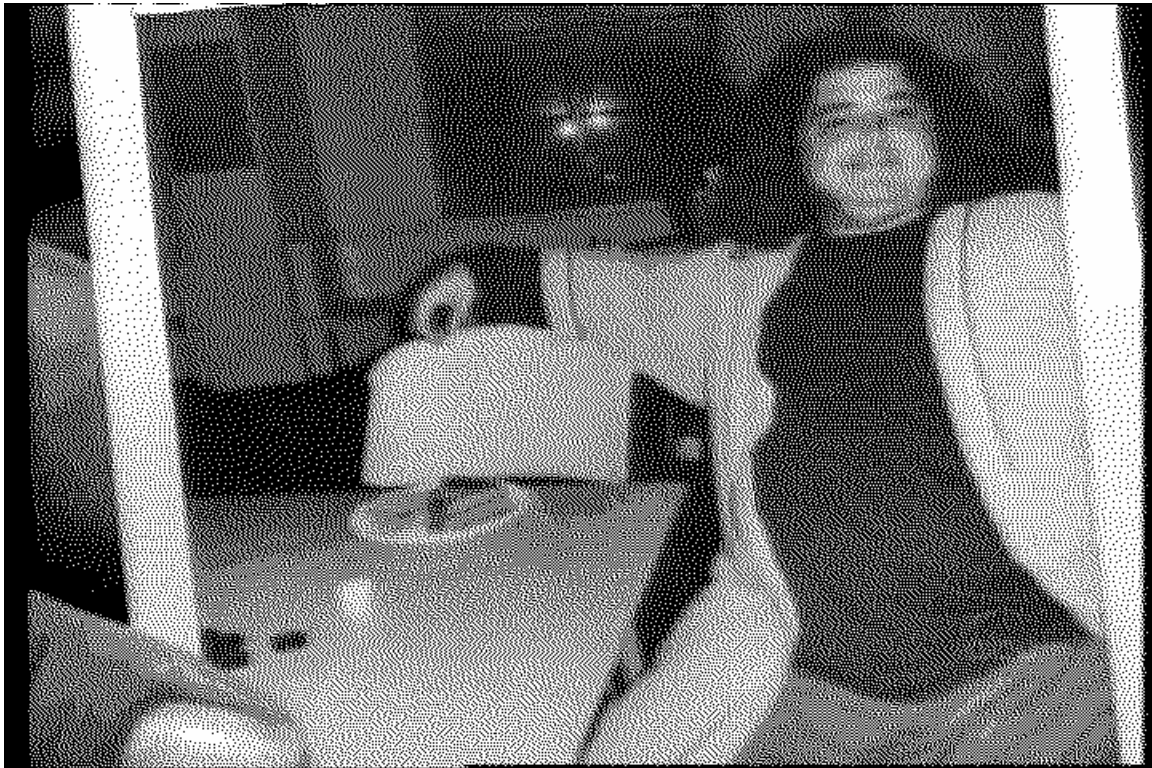

5. Locke: "God knows how long you've been here..."

Gale: "God doesn't know how long we've been here John. He can't see this island any better than the rest of the world can."

(Also interesting that Gale was tied in a 'crucified' position.) Nothing weird here, but probably the most important line of the show.

6. Dave said, 'See you in another life' ... just like Desmond did to Jack.

7. Here's the Hurly pictures with and without Dave: There are a few differences. Re-arranged celery, re-arranged checkers, nobody in the background, dark out instead of light. Continuity errors, or does it mean something?

8. Crazy sightings to date:
Hurley's imaginary friend 'Dave'
Jack seeing his father
Kate (and Sawyer) seeing the horse.

Sayid and Shannon seeing a backwards talking Walt (a-la Twin Peaks)

Numbers: Deck built for 8 but there were 23 on it. 2 people died.

Funniest Line: 'I've got enough food now to open a chain of Mini Marts. Hey, you think Sayid needs a job?' - Sawyer

Honorable mention: 'No, but I saw a polar bear on roller blades with a mango.' - Charlie

Sawyer's nicknames:

Tatoo (Charlie)

Moonbeam (Libby)

Deep Dish (Hurley)

Babynapper (Charlie)

Bonus for your reading pleasure 'A special dedication to Hurley's imaginary friend Dave, by Cheech and Chong:
