Title:

Well, just try to "Follow the Leader"... ready?

1. Jack takes the lead from Sawyer
2. Richard gives leadership to Locke
3. Ben yields to Locke
4. Locke is going to try to take the leadership from Jacob
5. Widmore decided to follow Eloise's plan.
6. Goodspeed gives in to Radzinsky's plan. He takes over Dharma.

Nothing too super secret this week. It was a "What you see is what you get" episode. Get your snacks ready for the 2 hour finale this week! And speaking of the big finale...

1. I think that this picture may have a lot to do with the season finale. I've heard some rumors. I won't say any more, but this picture seems to make me believe the rumors are true... and really fun!

2. Jack admits that Locke may have been right about destiny. This is one of the signs of the Apocalypse.
3. Richard remembers Jack, Kate, Hurley and Jin because he watched them all die.

4. Locke told Richard to tell Time Travelling Locke that he must die, ironically causing his own death.
5. Hurley is a little slow. He didn't think there was such a thing as the Korean War and had no idea that Carter was the president in the late 70's.

6. Sawyer's plan to get rich seems pretty solid. Betting on the Cowboys to win the 78 Super Bowl and buying stock in MicroSoft is a damn good plan.

7. Sawyer calls one of the Submarine crewmen Nemo referring to the book "20,000 Leagues under the Sea"

8. Little Charlotte got on the Sub to escape before 'The Incident' happens.

9. Secret swim hole into the H-Bomb cave. The H-Bomb which just happens to lie directly under Otherville.
